So genius rises, pure and fair, Nor heeds the tempests that arise, For when they have dispersed in air, Just like you glory of the skies, Her brilliant course she safely steers,

And lives and shines 'mid storms or tears. Oh! if the mind should chance to gaze, On Fancy's rich meridian blaze, And view upon her golden wing, Some pilgrim from the muse's spring Reclining there, and doubly blest, Fann'd by her fairles into rest. How would the heart with rapture beat, To gain so high and proud a seat, To slumber on ber silken wing, And live in one eternal spring. To the sweet Bard, whose gentle lyre,

Was swept in Truth's unerring cause, We fain would on thy brow desire The laurel of the world's applause. For thee it will forever bloom, And all thy darkened hours illume.

Thy harp " Musæus" ne'er should sleep, While fame to thee her tribute brings, And with some ballowed subject sweep Its soft and gently warbling strings. To thee the muse her tribute pays, And she will hover round thy head, To crown thy last declining days,

When all thy brightest hopes have fled. But there are fairer hands than thine, Would they but touch their dormant lyre. Might wake its numbers more divine, Than angels sung o'er golden wire. To thee " Tristissa," lovely maid, Our humble court we'd love to pay,

And gladly round thy temples braid A chaplet of the greenest bay. For thou can'st boast that dazzling beam, That Genius on her vot'ries sheds, And thou can'st swell the poet's theme, E'en tho' on classic ground he treads. Then lovely maid, that slumber break That o'er thy harp has lain so long,

For thou can'st from its strings awake. The sweetest, softest, gentlest song. And could we wield with Poesy's fire, The quil that genius gave to thee, We'd tune for thee our varied lyre, And thou our perfect theme should be. But we ne'er cull'd those boasted flowers. That bloom Parnassian heights among, Nor has our harp, in golden hours,

By Pancy's fairy hands been strung. Yet we will gaze with eager eye, Whene'er the Post shall reach our door. Still hoping we may there descry, From thy bright plume a line or more. March 8, 1823. QUIZ & Co.

The Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain. It is a matter of regret to the real Christian, to hear the name of his Christ and of God villified by the ungodly : of more regret, to see the professing Christian, who has done much, evidently meritorious and praiseworthy, unaccountably neglect to warn such of his children or servants as have imbibed the dreadful practice of profane cursing and swearing; but of the most regret, to see those who have entirely escaped the pollutions of the world, and tasted of the heavenly gifts, to become again entangled, through the wantonness of their companions, in this, of all others, the most awful practice. For, says the apostle, " Above all things my brethren swear not; neither by heaven, neither by any other oath; but let your yea be yea, and your nay be nay; lest ye fall into condemnation." Shall the impious, by the way side and at the corners of the streets, raise their unhallowed execrations in defence of the Majesty on high, without one warning voice or monitory check? If parents, guardians, or those upon whom this duty may devolve, suffer their children or servants to be thus vile, without any restraint, can they expect to remain innocent themselves? surely not One example only will be quoted from Scripture to prove this; it is enough God shall judge you 1 Sam. iii, 12, 13, 14. " In that day I will perform against Eli, all things which I have spoken concerping his house; when I will also make an end For I have told him that I will judge his house forever, for the iniquity which he knoweth; because his sons made themselves vile, and he restrained them not. And therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli, that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering forever." Hence it is perceived, that the afflictions which befel the high priest Eli, were not for the commission of known duty.

Dear reader, whoever thou art, if tainted by this practice be parsuaded to desist from it; and also to use thy influence in reclaiming others. " He that converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins."

PROM THE NEW-ENGLAND GALAXY. "You Swear like a Gentleman."

Dire execuations split your ears asunder-Death and damnation! furies! blood and thunder! As there are some vices, says a witty author, which the vulgar have presumed to copy from the great-so there are others which the great have condescended to borrow from the vulgar. For my part, I cannot see any difference between a "By God," or " God damn me," minched and softened from well bred lips, and the same expression bluntly bolted from the broad mouth of a porter or a boozy Jack Tar. The swearer devotes himself piece meal, as it were, to destruction-pours out anathemas against his heart, his eyes, his soul, and tend the same good wishes to the limbs and joints of his best friends and acquaintances. This genteel accomplishment of cursing and swearing, has been fornish an expedient or two for some of our pretty fellows who wish to cut a figure in the manly air that they may make application to the Doctor forth-

Inquietudes of mind cannot be prevented without first eradicating all our inclinations and passions, the winds and tides that preserve the great ocean of human life from perpetual stagnation. So long as men have pursuits, they must meet with disappointments; and whilst they have disappointments, they must be disquieted; whilst they are injured, they must be inflamed with anger; and whilst they see cruelties, they must be melted with pity; whilst they perceive danger, they must | destinally met her proscribed lover in her walks be sensible of fear; and whilst they behold beauty, they must be inslaved by love; nor can they be exempted from the various anxieties attendant on these various and turbulent passions. Yet without them we should be undoubtedly less happy and safe; for without anger we should not defend ourselves, and without pity we should not assist others, without fear we should not preserve our lives; and without love they would not be worth preserving. Pains of body are, perhaps, but the necessary consequences of the union of material and spiritual essences, for matter being by nature divisible, when endued with sensibility, must probably be modifications: wherefore, to have been freed from our sufferings, we must have been deprived of all our sensual enjoyments; a composition by which few surely would be gainers. Besides, the pains of our bodies are necessary to make us continually mindful of their preservation; for what number less lives would be lost in every trifling pursuit, or flung away in ill humour, was the piercing of a sword no more painful than the tickling of a

Death, the last and most dreadful of all evils, is so far from being one, that it is the infallible cure for all others-

To die is landing on some silent shore, Whose billows never beat, nor tempest roar; Erc well we feel the francis stroke tis o'er.

For, abstracted from the sickness and sufferings ration of that term of life God was pleased to be stow on us, without claim or merit on our part. But was it an evil ever so great, it could not be remedied by one much greater, which is by living for ever; by which means our wickedness, unrestrained by the prospect of a future state, would grow so unsupportable, our sufferings so intolerable by perseverance, and our pleasures so tiresome by repetition, that no being in the universe could be so completely miserable as a species of immortal men. We have no reason therefore to look upon death as an eril, or to be fearful of it as a punishment, even without any supposition of a future life: but if we consider it as a passage to a more perfect state, or a remove only in an eternal succession of stift improving states (for which we have the strongest reasons,) it will then appear a new favour from the divine munificence; and a man must be as absurd to repine at dying, as a traveller would be, who proposed to himself a delightful tour through various unknown countries, to lament that he cannot take up his residence at the first dirty inn which he baits at on the road.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

It is a common observation, that children are too little sensible of the duty which they owe their parents-too little concerned to return the obligations which parental kindness and affection have imposed upon them-the cares and anxieties, the numberless hours of solicitude, which the helpless period of infancy occasions to the parents-the fostering care and protection which childhood and youthful ago require, seldom are followed by an adequate return of gratitude. But when the playful volatility of childhood has subsided-when the years of maturity have ushered them forward upon the stage of the world-when in their turn, Irish follower of the Damp, Betty ; I single her out the children themselves become the parents of a as an instance; because of her we can best judge. progeny of their own, then they learn to feel and appreciate the obligations of duty toward their parents—then, the cares and solicitudes which every part of his body-ner does he scruple to ex- they feel for the happiness of their own offspring awakens in them a proper sense of filial affection and gratitude.-These sentiment's will receive some cleverly hit off, in a little satirical advertisement, little illustration from the following story of Mawhich appeared a few months since-As it may ria M-, the daughter of a merchant of ample fortune in this city, who, though he had other of execration and blasphemy, I shall with a little amendment, transcribe it for their special benefit, an extraordinary share of affection for Maria—

From Dolon in the Iliad to Major Andre, and from Maas an apt accomplished leacher of the never-to-beswell Maria's pride-she felt but little of a proper reflected how much her future happiness depended upon her prudence, and never perhaps considered how cruelly an irreverent act of disobedience must stab him to the heart. Maria's attractions drew round her a circle of admirers, and from the particular attentions she received from one young man of distinguished merit, her father had flattering hopes of seeing her happily settled in matrimonial life-those hopes, however, were soon frustrated. A trifling occurrence, as is often the case in love affairs, produced a love quarrel-Maria, piqued at what she construed into coldness and neglect in her lover, resolved to avenge it by encouraging the addresses of a rival suiter, a man with whom she had but a short acquaintance, and one in whom the discerning eye of an anxious and watchful parent discovered no substantial merithe warned his beloved daughter of her imprudence-he endeavoured to reconcile her to her ci-devant lover-he forbid her receiving the addresses of the former, and even interdicted the rights of hospitality, by closing the doors of his mansion against him. Maria construed all these into so many acts of parental tyranny. She clanabroad-was married, and eloped with him to a neighboring city. It had never entered her immagination, that her indulgent parent would so far withdraw his affection from her as to disinherit her; but she was fatally convinced of her error when she opened his letter informing her of his determination never to have any further intercourse with a child, whose perverse acts of disobedience, had destroyed his hopes and his peace -The expectations of her fortune being thus defeated, her husband began to treat her with indifaffected by pains and pleasures by its different ference, and exchanged her presence for the gambling table; where he soon was enlisted with a gang of counterfeiters, and finally was arrested by the arm of justice and shut up in the state prison, leaving the unfortunate Maria, now the mother of a helpless infant, destitute and friendless, to the mercy of the winds and waves of life's tempestuous ocean. In the first moments of agonizing distraction, when she learned her fate, nothing but the indissoluble ties of maternal affection for her bahe, prevented her from an act of desperation on her own person. She now felt the misery to which her disobedience had brought her; she looked upon her fittle innocent as it lay smiling in her lap, unconscious of its mother's woe; she clasped it to a copious flood of tears brought some relief to her struggling soul. The circumstances of her forlorn and destitute situation became known to her father, he immediately set out to search for his lost child, he found her in a miserable obscure apartment, half famished, weeping over her infant prattler. Adversity had left but the wreck of her former charms; her father saw her grief, and felt all the impulse of sympathy and a father's love-he clasped the penitential Maria in his arms, and sealed her pardon with the kiss of paternal affection, without permitting her even to supplicate his compassion and forgiveness. There are f.w writers of the present age whose works have been more extensively read on either side the Atlantic than those of Miss Edgeworth. Mixing so constantly the useful with the sweet, this lady is held in favorable estimation, as a writer, here, as well as in her native country : therefore, the following extract of a letter from her to a literary friend on this side the water, cannot be other-

"Thank you for the Spy. I cannot agree with you in thinking it a flashy performance. We read t aloud in our family, and notwithstanding many peculiar faults of style and composition, and th wearisome trick of describing every creature's looks and emphasis every time they speak or move, we found it highly interesting, describing manners and a state of society that are new to us -and independently of the American value we think it a work of great genius. "Ah me!" cried Magdalen Stapleton, as she came wringing her hands out of the celiar. " What is the matter-what ails the girl !" said Mrs. Whitworth ; "Has an adder bit you ?" "Oh, no !"-"Have you run a nail in your foot!" "Ah! no ; but I was thinking as I placed the heavy pot of lard on the shelf, that if I was married and had a baby, and it had grown large enough to follow me, and the pot had fallen on its head, it might have killed the poor, blessed little creature!" And here her tears flowed afresh.

And pray, gentle readers, how much better founded are 18-20ths of the troubles that afflict yourselves, or the other inhabitants of the world. How few-how very few, are the real requisites of life. They bear a fair relation to the little needed after we leave the world. Then a few boards. a winding sheet, and six feet by two of earth, answer all our purposes. A REGULAR THING. A traveller gives the following a count of the extravagan and gross impositions on the Dover oad, (in England.) At Rochester he was charged 2s. 6d. for a very ordinary cold supper; the landlady demanded 6d. each, as a " regular thing," for her trouble in waiting upon the party. At Canterbury he gave 3s. for himself and companion, to the coachman. On arriving at Dover, he gave the oachman who drove him from Canterbury, a very ort distance, 1s, 6d. The coachman civilly said, 6a. more, sir, if you please—it is a 'regular thing;' we have always a shilling each." The guard, to whom he gave 3s, demanded lover, as a regular thing," without any insolence, but with as much gravity as a baker would ask the price of a quartern loat when he has delivered it to a customer. Before a passenger leaves Dover, his things are of course taken to the custom housea little boy from the inn may carry a parcel weighing 20 lbs. for which he demand, Is or 1s, 6d; you appear surprised : he appeals to the Commissioner, who civilly declares it a " regular thing:" and then the boy asks for something for himself, because the money already paid goes to hi employer, and he expects 3d as a " regular thing," Next comes the commissioner of the inn-" Please to remember the commissioner;" and then the custom house officer, for taking the baggage.to he vessel.

If you complain, they reply "it is a regular thing,' sir, fixed by the town." Lastly, comes the ladder, for descending into the packet-"Six pence, sir, it is a 'regular thing.'" Thus, from London to Calais there is nothing but imposition, against which you complain in vain, because it is "regular thing." At the moment in which I am writing this, the steward of the King George enters the inn, and declares he must have 23s for each passenger to Calais instead of the usual fare, 10s. 6d. because it is a "regular thing" when there is no steam boat in the harbor, and you have only Hobson's choice.

to set a proper value upon the tenderness of a fa-The following passage is extracted from a speech ther. From the example of the unfortunate Maria of Judge Story, in the late convention of Massa-M. let the amiable and smiling daughters of prosperity learn to put a just estimate upon the im-

" In our country, the highest man is not above the people; the humblest is not below the people. Those who are wealthy to day pass to the tomb. and their children divide their estates. Property thus is divided quite as fast as it accumulates .-No family can, without its own exertions, stand erect for a long time, under our statute of descents and distributions, the only true and legitimate agrarian law It silently and quietly dissolves the mass heaped up by the toil and diligence of a long life of enterprise and industry. Property is continually changing like the waves of the sea. One wave rises, and is soon swallowed up in the vast abyss and seen no more. Another rises, and having reached its destined limits, falls, gently away, and is succeeded by yet another, which, in its turn, breaks and dies away, silently on the shore. The richest man among us, may be brought down to the humblest level; and the child, with scarcely clothes to cover his nakedness, may rise to the highest office in our government; and the poor man, while he rocks his infant on his knees, may justly indulge the consolation, that if he possesses alents and virtue, there is no office beyond the reach of his honorable ambition."

There were once in England an order of people known by the appellation of Borderers, who carried the art of cow stealing to its greatest perfection: In those parts, which are remote from the great roads, although their plundering habits are now all laid aside, they still retain much of their old rade manners and barbarous spirit. An instance of this we heard of from our companion. A Borderer who was at mortal enmity with one of his neighbors, fell sick; and being given over, sent for his enemy, that they might be reconciled. said he, when the man en'ered the room, very bad, very bad, indeed; d'ye think i shall die?"
"Why I hope not," replied his visitor—" to be sure you are very bad, but for all that, perhaps you may do yet." "No, no," said the other, "I shall die; and so I have sent for you that I may not go out of the world in enmity with any one. So d'ye "But independently of Berty, there is very strong see, we'll be friends. The quarrel between us

The following Annuess To THE YOUTH Was an nexed to a letter lately received by two Friends in this city, from the venerable author; it is a fresh evidence of his unfrigned love for his young friends, and is thought worthy of being generally diffused. After his return home from these parts he has, we learn, been engaged in making a religious visit to the families of his own meeting; i is pleasing to see this devoted servant patiently and firmly pursuing the path of duty amidst good report and evil report, not clated by the one or depressed by the other; for truly, we believe be can adopt the language, " But none of these things move me-neither count I my life dear unto my self, so that I might finish my course with joy and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God."

"Since penning the foregoing, my mind has been drawn into a renewed feeling of near sympathy and go-pel affection with the dearly beloved youth, not only those of your monthly meeting that fell more particularly under my notice in the family visits I made when with you, but all others of your city, to whom the Lord in the riches of his mercy, is renewedly visiting with the day spring from on high, through the immediate manifestation of his love and light in their inner man, as the guardian angel of his presence to guide them and keep them; and as they take heed thereonto, will preserve and keep them from all evil, and will lead them up to the head spring and fountain of living water, of which, when they drink, they will never thirst again after the muddy waters of tradition and education, that stands in the letter that killeth; but their thirst will be continually satiated with the pure water of life, that makes glad all Zion's dedicated and devoted children, and which adds no sorrow with it. And as they give good heed to this holy anointing, which is truth and is no lie, it will lead them off from all dependance on man, whose breath is in his postrils, for wherein is he to be accounted of; and they will have no need that any man teach them then, but as the same anointing teacheth; it will bring them to see the end of all shadows that stand in outward visible things, let them be ever so great or excellent, and will gather them into itself (the invisible power) to the law of the spirit of life, that sets the soul free from the law of sin and death, and from all condemnation. And may the dear youth dwell near and in this holy principle, in this day of trial and rebuke, for the Lord's hand is stretched out upon the nations, and he will overturn, overturn, overturn it, and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is, and I will give it him. The Lord I believe is about to put an end, and overturn all man's work in religion and to put an end to all man's forms, creeds, and professions, that stand in man's will and spirit, that He only, may come to rule and reign in the hearts of his children, that so all may savingly come to know but one Lord, one faith, and one baptism; one God and Father of all, who is above all, through all, and in you all. May the dearly beloved visited youth press forward toward this blessed and happy state, and come to know an establishment therein, is the sincere and sympathetic desire of their ancient, affectionate, and exercised friend and elder brother, ELIAS HICKS."

WAR IN EUROPE!!

The Packet Ship New York, Capt. Maxwell, arrived at New-York, in S7 days from Leverpool. has furnished the Editors of the Commercial Ad. entirer with regular files of London papers to the evening of the 30th January, and Liverpool to the 1st of February, which affind the following intereating view of the affairs of Europe.

It will be seen that the great question of Peace or War, has in effect been decided. The Ministers of the Allied Powers have left Madrid in the worst possible humour, and the Gaul, headed by the Dake de Augouleme, marches upon the Don The turch of war, which was for a time extinguished at Waterloo, has thus been re-lighted How far it will spread - whether all Europe will be in Volved in the conflict-whether the storm will be confined to the Peninsula, or roll onward until the Seine, the Ruine, and the Danube are tinged with blood-or, whether the object of the Allies will be accomplished by a single blow-are questions which time alone can determine. We pretend not to more sagacity than others-but we may be allowed to remind our readers, that we have all along held the language that a rupture of the peace in Europe was to be anticipated at no distant day, Although the events of the continent have at times haffled all calculations, and almost set speculation at defiguee, yet we have perceived, or thought that we perceived indications that the peace would not be lasting, and that Europe must bleed afresh-Whatever must be the result great events may be anticipated. The character and temper of the Spanish nation are such, that an easy and bloodless campaign, not withstanding their present intestine commetions, is not to be reasonably anticipated. and as Ferdinand cannot but be suspected of look. ing with a favorable eye upon the meditated invasion we should imagine that his head is not in the greatest state of security that could be wished -His cousin of France, likewise may look well to his crazy throne, should his troops meet with disaster beyond the Pyrenees.

The most prominent features in the speech de-litered by the King of France before the Chamber of Deputies, on the 12th of Jan. are contained in the following paragraphs:

"I have done every thing to insure the security of my subjects and to preserve: Spain from the extreme of misforume; the infutuation with which the propositions sent to Machid, have been rejected, LEAVES LIPTLE HOPE OF PEACE.

" I have ordered the recall of my Minister, and one hundred thousand Frenchmen commanded by a Prince of my Pamily whom it delights my heart to call my son are about to march and invoke the God of St Louis to preserve the throne of Spain to a grandson of Henry IV to preserve that fine kingdom from ruin and to reconcile her to Europe."

The anxiety of the public at Paris, about the opening of the Chambers, was so great that 500 frances was offered for a single admission.

The arrival of the news from Paris, produced great agitation and confusion in London—particularly on the Stock exchange. At an early honrall the passages were crowded with anxious spectators to ascertain the prices at which the funds would open. "Consols, which the preceding night, closed at 78 5 8, soon fell to 743, but afterwards rose again to 75 18 4. The Spanish Bonds, which the evening before, closed at 404, opened this morning (the 30th) at 381, and within a few mi nutes fell to 36 7-8 37. What is rather remarkable, the French funds were improved at Paris by the

By the latest news from Madrid, (Jan. 17) would appear that the Army of the Faith is not nearly annihilated as it had been represented to be We there read that Catalonia and Arragon were never more full of Royalist guerillas than now .-Mirales has made a terrible example at Tarragona, by cutting to pieces a constitution I battalion which refused to lay down its arms on the first summons. The accounts, however, upon both sides, are to be received with great cantion.

A letter from Puvcard, says, the news of war between the sovereigns of Europe and the Cortes, was received by the royalist troops shut up in the forts of Urgel, with the most lively enthusiasm .-Acclamations and discharges of artillery rent the air on the occasion; the bells were rung at Castel Cintat, a village situated between the citadel and the forts, composed of about forty houses, and conveniently situated for making common cause with th besieged.

A letter from Madrid says-All the constitutional orators and writers had told us that the instant the French should pass the Pyrenees, the factious would make common cause with the "friends of An intercepted letter of the famous the system." Merino, suddenly extinguishes this hope. He therein orders his Lieutenant, Mendoza, to receive the French as "liberators, faithful subjects of the Bourbons, good Catholics, in a word, as friends."

It was reported at Paris on the 28th, that the three Courts of Russia, Austria, and Prussia, have addressed a joint note to the B-itish Government, soliciting her to make a declaration of the principles and policy she intends to adopt in the war be-

General Mina, it is said, has given the deadly advice to divide the whole of the forces under his command into bands of one hundred men each, for the purpose of harrassing the French by a guerilla warfare on a grand scale.

A French ministerial paper states that France has refused the mediation of England, twice proposed; first, by the Duke of Wellington, and secondiv, by Sir W. A'Court. The ambassaadors of Russia, Austria, and Prussia, as soon as they arrive in Paris, are to be accredited to " the Re

As far as we can learn, the greatest union stil prevailed in the Cortes, among all parties, to rest, in case of war, the efforts of foreigners. I the sitting of the 16th, a Deputy made a motion to grant a general amnesty for political offences, in cluding even the accused of the affair of July 7.

The Marquis of Londonderry has been recalled from his embassy at Vienna. Sir Henry Wellesley is appointed to succeed him. The neutrality of England is still affirmed. The Courier says, " some of our contemporaries have of late inserted statements of increased ex ertions in the Naval Arsenals, which have a tendency to excite apprehensions of hostilities being expected by his majesty's government; we ar authorised to state, that there has been no such in crease of exertion, and that there has not been the smallest tendency to warlike preparations at any of the Dock vards.

The documents which we publish this evening hay be received as the most extraordinary diplomatic correspondence that has ever taken place in Europe. The tone of fierce defiance assumed by

Prince Metternich has lately visited Munich, for the purp ise of concluding a treaty of alliance between the Austrian and Bavarian governments in which it is said he has succeeded

A Bayonne paper of Jan. 18, says, the Patriarch of Lisbon has at length found a suitable retreat for the unfortunate Queen of Portugal It is said that a merchant of that city has made an offer of his fine country house situated some distance from Bayonne. This confirms the report already spread, that the unfortunate Queen means definitively to fix her residence in France.

Mr. Jackson, attached to the English embassi at Madrid, arrived at Bayonne on the 16th, in 50 hours, and proceeded immediately for Paris. He is said to be charged with an important mission. He left Madrid on the 14th, when all was perfecttranquil. Sir W. A'Court continued to enjoy he highest consideration at Madrid, and had of ten very brilliant assemblies, at which the most distinguished Spanish nobility and diplomatic characters were observed.

The Emperor Alexander was expected to ar rive at Warsaw, on the 12th of January, where he would remain until the 19th, and arrive at St. Petersburgh on the 27th.

A Dresden paper of January 12, says, the Leipsic Fair is as bad as possible. In consequence of the cold, water has become so scarce, that many manufactories are wholly at a stand. At Augustusburg, a pitcher of water costs about 13d. and in Hobenstein, the scouring of rooms is prohibited under a penalty of 5 rix dollars.

An Augsburgh article of Jan. 21, says, the last letters received from the frontiers of Russia, contime of warlike character, masmuch as the general persuasion is, that the Britannic Ambassador. Lord Stranford, will fail in the mission which he has gone to fulfil at Constantinople In the Breslau Gazette a difference of opinion between Austria and Russia is noticed as to the reinstatement of Poland under Saxony. It is also rumonred that 30,000 Prussians will enter Poland o replace the Polish army in the event of war with Turkey, and a position on the Danube will be taken by an Austrian army.

Advices from Salonichi, of the 20th of Decemer have arrived at Belgrade. They write from Seres that detached parties of Chourchid Pacha's army arrived there daily, in the most deplorable condition, returning to their homes. It was in ferred from this, that the Greeks must have advanced near to Larissa. On the 15th of December the Morea enjoyed a legree of tranquility. The Greeks had collected all their forces in the neighbourhood of Corinth. The military movements had closed in Epirus and Acarnania, as well as in Etolia. The Greeks have esolved to take advantage of the cessation of hosilities to work during the winter at the fortifications of Missolunghi, in order to add as much as possible to the strength of that important place. The direction of these works has been confided to European engineers. It was reported that England would firmish money and artiflery.

The central governments of Greece have issued decree authorising Baron Scheocharis Kephalis, of Olympus, annual representative in the National council of Greece, and Chronias Dropino, annual representative in the same council, their authoised agents, to borrow for the account of Greece, of the Oriental continent, the sum of 150,000 flo rins, Augsburg currency.

A vessel arrived at Malta on the 16th of De cember, which left Napoli di Romania on the 9th of December, states, that that important fortress was at that time in the hands of the Greeks. The Turks capitulated, and were allowed to take away the third part of the considerable property that had been amassed there.

We find an extract from a letter from Algiers, n which it is reported that the flotilla fitting out there, destined for the Morea, to replace such of the Algerine vessels as have been damaged or destroyed by the Greeks. The squadron consists of 6 vessels of war of various sizes, four of which are nearly completed. The Algerines are much exasperated with their recent loves.

The probability of a war between Algiers and Spain increased—the former considering a lawful to capture every thing under the flag of the latter. From Odessa the letters are flated on the 31st December. Amongst the Russian officers there was a general idea of a war with Turkey, as soon as the weather permitted, and the necessary pre

A letter from Persia, dated Taberis, Sept. 20, gives the following particulars of a great battle between the Persians and Turks, in which the army of the latter, amounting to 52,000 men, was totally defeated. Late advices from Syria give a deplorable account of the situation of the inhabitants who survived the first shocks of the earthquake. In addition to the sufferings produced behunger, disease, and exposure to the inclemency of the sea son, a horrid stench, arising from the number of dead bodies had obliged them to leave the camp they had formed in the neighbourhood of the towns, abandoning all hope of any recovery of their property, and reluctantly forsaking their habitations, heir home, and the tombs of their ancestors!

The King of Great Britain was so much indisposed that it was supposed he would not be able o open the session of Parliament in person. His majesty, however, was on the recovery.

Mr. Canning has resigned his place in the house of commons as Representative for Liverpool. He has done this from a conviction that he cannot discharge his duties to his constituents, and at the same time his duties as a Minister.

The Rev. Dr. Chalmers, of Glasgow, has accept d the vacant Professorship of Moral Philosophy in the University of St. Andrew's, which has excited deep and general regret at Glasgow.

Mr. Abernethy has addressed, it is said, a letter to the Secretary of State, on the necessity of repealing the late act of parliament, which subjects Resurrection men (as they are called) to severe punishment for violating the sanctity of the tomb. Under the present restrictions, dead bodies are become very scarce in London, and some of the dissecting rooms are absolutely without an adult

A swindling establishment of immense magnitude has lately been discovered in London, in consequence of the non-nerformance of its engagements. They have had branches in Liverpool Manchester, Birmingham, in Scotland, and in several parts of the continent. Their debts, it is stated, amount to 200 000%. We understand that several of the parties are in costody.

The celebrated Dr. Charles Hutton, F. R. S. died at his house in Bedford Row, on the 21st, in the 86th year of his age.

OFFICIAL NOTES.

Note addressed by the Prussian Minister at the Cour of Madrid to Senor San Miguel.

The observations which the undersigned Charge d'Affairs of His Majesty the King of Prussia had the honor to submit on the 6th current, to His Excellency Senor Col. San Mignel, Secretary of State to His Most Catholic Majesty, having been replied to in a manner far from conformable to the wishes of his Court, finds himself under the necessity of executing a very peremptory order of the King, his master, by declaring to the Spanish Minister that His Prussian Malesty can no longer maintain with Spain relations which, in the present circumstances, would be as little conformable to their object, as to the sentiments of friendship and interest which the King has invariably manifested to wards His Catholic Majesty.

In obeying this order, the undersigned has also to make his assurances, that the King, his august Sovereign, will never cease to put up the most sincere prayers for the happiness of a nation which His Majesty, with the deepest sorrow, perceives to be on the road to ruin, and plunging into all the horrors of anarchy and civil war

I have the honor to request that your Excellency will be pleased to transmit me the passports ne-Spain, is evidently calculated to exasperate the cessary for my leaving Spain; and I renew the assurance of my high consideration.

> ANSWER. I have received the Note, which your Exceller cy transmitted to me trader the date of the 10th and, contenting myself with stating in reply, that the wishes of the Government of His Most Catho lic Majesty for the happiness of the Prussian States are not less ardent than those manifested by Hi Majesty the King of Prussia towards Spain, transmit to your Excellency, by royal order, the passports for which you have applied.

(Dated the Pajace, January 11, 1823, and signed with the usual formalities.)

EVARISTO SAN MIGUEL.

THE RUSSIAN NOTE. The undersigned, Charge d'Affairs of his Majes ty the Emperor of all the Russias, has seen wit real pain that the answer of his Excellency Seno San Miguel, to his verbal communication made or the 6th of this month, is very far from fulfilling the wishes of which he was the medium.

To place in a still clearer light the justice of the cause which he has sustained, and to cause the be nevolent intentions of Russia to be appreciated, have the honor to address officially to his Excellency Senor San Miguel, a copy of the despatch which I presented to him.

The facts therein recorded are of general note riety. No reasoning can change them, and con sequently the undersigned can have no motive for altering his first communication.

That Communication is about to be published t Europe, and Europe will judge between the Powers who are animated by the noble desire of doing good, and a Government which appears to be re solved to fill up the cup of the misfortunes of

With respect to the determination announced in the note of his Excellency Senor Miguel, all the responsibility will fall on the heads of those persons who are to be considered as its soul authors; and while the same persons deprive their le gitimate Sovereign of his liberty-while they deliver up Spain to all the evils of a sanguinary anarchy and by means of keeping up a culpable under-standing, endeavor to extend to other States the calamities in which they have involved their own country, Russia can maintain no relation with authorities which tolerate and even excite such

The undersigned has therefore the honor to request that His Excellency Senor San Miguel, will send to him his passports, adding to them passports for the persons who compose the Imperial Legation at the Court of his Most Catholic Majes-

The undersigned arails himself of this opportu nity to renew to his Excellency Senor San Miguel, the assurance of his most distinguished considera-

(Signed) The COUNT DE BULGARA. Madrid, Dec. 28, (Jan. 9.)

ANSWER. I have received the very insolent note which your Excellency transmitted to me yesterday, the 10th instant, and, limiting myself for my sole reply to stating that you have shamefully abused (per haps through ignorance) the law of nations, which is always respectable in the eyes of the Spanish Government, I transmit, by order of his Majesty, the passports which you desire, hoping that your Excellency will be pleased to leave this capital with as little delay as possible.

1 am, &c. EVARISTO SAN MIGUEL. January 11.

THE AUSTRIAN NOTE.

The Allied Sovereigns assembled at Verona have been of opinion that they could no longer remain silent on the misfortunes and disorders which desolate Spain. Their duty and their conscience oblige them to speak, and the undersigned Charge d'Affairs for Austria has had the honor of making known to Colonel San Miguel, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to his Most Catholic Majesty, the sentiments and wishes of the Empc-

The reply which his Excellency gave to this verbal communication, proves that the intentions of his Majesty have been misinterpreted, and his offers undervalued. The undersigned will not descend to the point of refuting the calumnions

Europe will be enabled to judge of this. But the Court of Austria is of opinion that its disapproval of the causes of the evils which oppress a noble and generous nation, for which it professes so much esteem, and for which it feels so much interest, would not be sufficiently declared if it continued to maintain diplomatic relations with the Spanish Government. In execution of his orders, the undersigned, therefore, informs the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that his mission is terminated; and requests that his Excellency will have the goodness to forward to him his passports.

On this occasion the undersigned has the honor o offer to his Excellency the homage of his high consideration.

Count BRUNETTI. (Signed) Madrid, Jan. 10.

ANSWER

I have received the note which your excellency vas pleased to remit to me, dated yesterday, the 10th, and having now only to say that the Government of his Catholic Majesty is indifferent whether it maintains relations or not with the Court of Vienna, I send you, by Royal order, the proposals which you have required.

I am, &c. EVARISTO SAN MIGUEL. Madrid, Jan. 11.

Copy of the letter addressed by the Count De Bulgari, the Russian Charge d'Affairs to M. San Miguel, dated Madrid, Jan. 15.

Sin, I have received the note which your Excelency transmitted to me, dated the day before yesterday. The respect which I owe to the forms and principles admitted and consecrated by all civilzed nations, prevents me-not only from replying to that note, but even from making its contents known to my Government. I hasten, therefore, to send it back to your Excellency, for the eyes of the Emperor, my master, must not be disgusted by the perusal of a production which I abstain ed and when in the bed undressed; cuti from characterising, and in which his Imperial Majesty and Europe would look in vain for the slightest evidence of a Government which knows how to respect itself. I have the honor to be, &c.

"The Spaniards are very much exasperated at the Americans, particularly the lower order. On my arrival here, the Americans flocked around me, complained of insults and personal outrages ; several had been stoned in the streets; they are very liberal in their abuse of me, and not sparing in their threats of vengeance—they have declared meapirate. The authorities are, however, very ril, and do every thing they can to preserve anquility, and a good understanding between the rds and Americans. The pirates have surcely been heard of since poor ALLEN's affair, and the blow given them by the English : and I e been informed that there is little likelihood one's escaping hereafter, to give information coast, about fificen miles from this, informed me, that, a few days since, he observed from his house teoressels burned by the pirates, and believes the erew most have been destroyed, as none have petresched the shore. 2d. Pointing over the Hard with your finger, or any other action which ca interrupt your adversary's full view of the me is not tolerated. 3d. The Men may be properly placed on the Squares in any part of the Game; but after they are so placed, if you touc a Man you must play him in one direction or cher; if, however, you move your Man so far as b be in any part visible playing from and to, you mist finish your move so

CRITICAL REMARKS ON THE GAME. In particular situations, to have the Move on our side, is a decisive accentage over even a skilful adversary. This is a matter but little un-derstood by ordinary playes, but its importance will fully appear by studying the critical situations. To have the Move, signifie, your occupying that position on the Board which will eventually enable you to force your adversity into a confined situation, and which at the end of the Game, secures to yourself the last Move. It must, however, be observed, that where your Men are in a confined state, the Move is not only of no use to you, but, Game. To know in any particular situation whether you have the Move or your adversary, you must number the Men and the Squares, and if the Men

There is another mode, which will in less time than reckoning the Squares, enable you to see who has the Move. For instance, if you wish to know, whether any one Man of yours, has the Move of any one Man of your adversary's, cast your eye on the situations of both, and if you find a Black Square on the right Angle, under his Man you have the Move,-For example, you are to play first, and your White Man is 30, when your adversary's Black Man is 3-In this situation, you will find the right Angle in a Black Square between $1 and $2, immediately under 3, and therefore you have the Move. This Rule will apply to any number of Men, and holds true in all cases without exception.

The noviciate will notice that the Critical remarks as given above, are preliminary to the rules laid down by Mr. Payne; it is necessary that they should be known to the beginner, in order that he may understand the rudiments of the game. Next week we shall publish Game, No. 1, with a Table affixed, shewing the manner in which the Draught Board is numbered, and how the Game may be won or lost.]

Distress in the West.

MUCH distress exists in this City-originating solely from the teeth; owing, in a great degree, to the manner in which the business of the Dentist has been conducted. If information had been publicly given, many of the most distressing cases might have been prevented-timely application would have been made-the teeth would have been properly treated, and many persons who now are almost destitute of teeth, would still enjoy them. But it has been so unfashionable to advertise, that no dentist of any celebrity would risk his popularity by giving publicity to information so much required. But these injurious prejudices have been partially dissipated, and Williams now has the satisfaction of seeing advertisements and public information much more respected, and, he hopes, in a few years, the complaints and lamentations which are now heard so frequently, will Singular anecdote of a Parrot.

A Quaker lady in England, had a little servant girl, whom she frequently called into the parlour, to instruct her in reading, and as she had a low, mumbling voice, her mistress had frequent occasion to reprove ner, telling her to speak up-can if thee will-mutter, mutter, mutter, mutter. A favourite parrot, which was kept caged in the parlour, from the frequent reiteration, learned to repeat this form of reproof verbatum. It happened that a ministering friend in his travels visited this family, and they had what is called a family sit-ting, in which the friend felt a concern to speak— and beginning in rather a low tone, the parrot Bung out-speak up-can if thee will-mutter, mutter, mutter, mutter. The preacher raised his voice a little. But presently he heard the same command-speak up-can if thee will-mutter, mutter, mutter, mutter, and the reproof was repeated, till the preacher found that nothing but the audability of his voice would silence the pert reprover. It is needless to state that Poll was never after permitted to be present during a family sitting.

Gold Leaf .- " Dr. Black has calculated that it would take fourteen millions of films of gold, such as is on gilt wire to make up the thickness of one inch; whereas forrteen millions of leaves of commen printing paper would occupy 3-4ths of a mile in thickness. The ductility of gold is such, that one ounce of it is sufficient to gild a silver wire more than 1800 miles long."
